

ROSA GALLEGOS

Gallegos was born in 1949 in Matamoros, Mexico, a border town next to Brownsville, Texas. Painting has always been a part of her life. Since childhood, the use of colors and the exploration of very basic techniques led her to win first prize in her local school contest. As a teenager she took watercolor and oil painting classes. After high school, Gallegos attended the Municipal Art School in Monterrey where she spent two years attending workshops in encaustics, collage, pastel, acrylic and printmaking techniques.

Today she predominately works with acrylics. She loves creating abstracts and semi-abstract themes by mixing in nature. She uses mainly bright colors. Her art has been displayed in many collective and individual shows such as The Grand Bazaar of Mexican Art, The International Art Show, The Bilingual Talent Exposition and the Pictorial Gallery 202.

Gallegos is currently living in Monterrey, Mexico. She is married and has two grown sons. In addition to being an artist, she is also an art teacher. To this day she still attends workshops so that her art will always be evolving.

“I like my work to be described as one with equilibrium, intended to provide pleasure, beauty and inner peace.”
